DC follows Blackest Night with 'Brightest Day'! A 26 issue bi-weekly series written by Geoff Johns and Peter Tomasi with covers by David Finch (artists not yet announced) that will tie in heavily with Green Lantern, GL Corps, the new Flash series by Johns & Manipul and more! Looks like a winner! Between the end of the New Krypton storyline and this summers blockbuster 'War of the Supermen' there is a mini-Superman crossover called 'Last Stand of New Krypton' as Braniac wants to shrink the Kryptonians again. There will be a 3-issue mini-series and it will cross Supergirl & Adventure as Superboy, Supergirl & The Legion gets involved! The Creeper by Steve Ditko kicks off anew line of classic DC hardcovers that are cheaper than archives ($39.99) and spotlight characters & artists that haven't gotten the deluxe treatment before. Further volumes spotlight The Atomic Knights by Murphy Anderson, The Viking Prince by Joe Kubert, and the very first Superboy stories from More Fun and Adventure Comics!...I've actually enjoyed the Hope stories in Cable, watching her grow up in that comic and am looking forward to the mini-X-Men crossover as she returns to the present (all grown-up) perhaps to be the new Phoenix...Hey Look! Marvel is putting it's toes in the magazine sized Black & White market again with issues featuring Iron Man & Dr. Strange! The Twelve gets a special this month before they return!
